About Pearline, almost every one knows about Pearline, almost every one theory and the Pearline, but we wonder if all the housekeepers who use it know half that han be done with it. We wonder if they all know what some of the bright ones have discovered, that those mountains of diebwashing—the greasy nan and kettle—may be rounced to mole halfs of the smallest size by the ludicious use of Pearline. Fill the roesting-pan as seon as the trary is purely from it with cold water, shake in a little Pearline and set on the stove. By the line the rest of the dishes are washed all the grease is dissolved and the pan can be washed as easily as a plate. Treat the kettle in which anything greasy has been boiled in the same way, and besidese clean attential you will have a clean sink, the use of the Pearline rendering it safe to pour such dishwater into the strice, and I'm trying to see if she's looking out of the window for me. fle went to that city in the beginning of this century, and soon gained a reputation by the excellence of his pianos.

The instrument in question was expressly ordered from him by Becthoven. In consideration of his deafness it was made with four strings to each key, instead of the usual three. Owing to the strength of its tones, Beethoven used it almost exclusively in the last years of his life.

After his death it passed into the hands of the bookseller. Franz Wimmer, of vicina; and after the marriage of his daughter to a Swiss dergyman named Widmann, it lecame the property of the Widmann family in Berne. Its genuineness is proved by documents and confirmed by the authority of Johannes Bramhs.
